

MAKING Life BETTER

A CANADIAN CROP FOR CANADIAN MEDICINE

Greenhouses are now recognized by the Industry as the most suitable environment for successful medicinal cannabis production.

- While originally grown in metal clad industrial buildings, cannabis production across Canada has moved to greenhouses in Rural areas as the most appropriate facility for plant growth.
- The Green Organic Dutchman will produce all of its organic cannabis in greenhouse facilities, indistinguishable from other greenhouse crops. Using natural sunlight to grow greatly reduces the power operating cost, our Carbon Footprint, and is better for the plant.
- The greenhouses are re-purposeful to other crops.
- The Organic Cannabis plants must be protected from the pollution and contaminants typically found in Urban settings. Any contamination results in catastrophic crop failure and potential risk to patients.

Environmental Sustainability is a core value of The Green Organic Dutchman.

- All operational Greenhouses will be LEED certified with Solar power.
- 85% of all water is reused on site. There will be negligible effects on the local water table.
- Water monitoring devices have been placed on adjacent farmer's wells (at the cost of The Green Organic Dutchman) to ensure no impact on adjacent water supply.
- TGOD Community Farm (8 acres) will provide community education on renewable energy, proper water management, and organic growing. All organic fruit and vegetable produce grown will be donated to the Hamilton Food Bank and other local charities.

Rural Land usage

- Class 5 OMAFRA rating
- The limitations are so severe that the soils are not capable of use for sustained production of annual field crops.
