Hello,

I'm writing to weigh in on urban boundary expansion. I am firmly against boundary expansion. Expansion benefits the wealthy—those who already have homes, those with high incomes, and of course developers. Instead, I urge the city to focus on density— we have so much space already in our city along transit lines, close to resources, and already serviced by major utilities. Let's build our city up by building it UP, not out.

Thank you,

Brittany
